Background

ADA Australia is funded by the Australian Government under the Department of Social Services' National Disability Advocacy Program, to provide people with disability access to effective advocacy that promotes, protects and ensures their full and equal enjoyment of all human rights enabling full community participation.

ADA Australia is also jointly funded by the Australian and State Governments to provide independent advocacy services to recipients and potential recipients of services under the Commonwealth Aged Care Programs in both residential and community setting services and Queensland Community Care Services. Through funding from Legal Aid Queensland, ADA Australia also provides support to adults in relation to administration and guardianship matters with assistance at QCAT hearings.

ADA Australia is an organisation that offers training, flexibility and support to employees. We see this as a rewarding opportunity for someone with the skills and interests in representing people with disabilities by providing information, education and advocacy support to help protect human rights and improve quality of life.
